This impressive 40,000m² country estate in Almachar, between Riogordo and Comares, features a beautifully renovated 300-year-old main house and a separate guest house, offering extensive living space, multiple terraces, a pool, gardens and outbuildings, with significant potential for lifestyle or business use. The main house includes spacious living areas with fireplaces, a large country kitchen, several double bedrooms including a master suite with open bathroom, while the second house provides additional flexible accommodation; both are set within a fully fenced plot with solar power, water systems, storage areas, and the ability to run largely off-grid, creating a unique property combining character, sustainability and versatility.
