Some properties are difficult to capture in numbers alone. This beautifully restored Andalusian cortijo is one of them. Set in the spectacular countryside near Colmenar, surrounded by mountains and unspoilt nature, this exceptional country estate combines the character of a traditional home with generous outdoor living and an already established guest accommodation concept. With approximately 606 m² built on a plot of 8,525 m², the property offers an exceptional amount of space and versatility whether the next owner is looking for a substantial private residence, a home with accommodation for family and guests, or the opportunity to continue an already running rural hospitality business.
